Alumni contribution in Student Welfare

Our Praktani Association also played a significant role in supporting student welfare and enhancing the overall educational experience to promote student welfare and create a positive impact on the student community. This year our Praktani Association contributed 50000 rupees to provide financial support to students in need. This helps to reduce the financial burden on students and enables them to focus on their studies without worrying about tuition fees and other expenses.

Spherical mirror

Physical Science	Class X	Spherical mirror	Oct 3, 2021	Swarup Chowdhury	https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=TydzUmU5VmY

During the presentation, Swarup Chowdhury has discussed spherical mirrors and their properties. Spherical mirrors are of two types: concave and convex. Concave mirrors converge light rays, forming real or virtual images based on the object's position. In contrast, convex mirrors diverge light, producing smaller, virtual images. The mirror's focal length determines the image formation, with a shorter focal length leading to more significant magnification. He also explained the mirror equation and magnification formula, emphasizing their application in real-life scenarios, such as makeup mirrors and vehicle side mirrors. Understanding mirror images is crucial for optics and various optical devices. He concluded the presentation with practical examples to reinforce the concepts and their relevance in everyday life.

Circular Cylinder

In this lecture, Dipanjan Koley elucidated the concept of a circular cylinder and its properties. A circular cylinder is a three-dimensional geometric shape with two parallel circular bases of equal size connected by a curved lateral surface. He discussed how to calculate its surface area and volume using specific formulas. Surface area involves adding the areas of the two circular bases and the lateral surface, while the volume is determined by multiplying the base area with the height of the cylinder. He also highlighted practical applications of circular cylinders, such as in containers, pipes, and cylinders used in various engineering and architectural designs. Understanding these fundamental concepts helps in comprehending more complex geometric shapes and their real-world implementations. The presentation aimed to provide a clear understanding of circular cylinders and their significance in daily life.

Ex-RKM students converge on Belur Math

Rupak Banerjee

Howrah: The first all India alumni meet of all educational institutions and students' homes under Ramakrishna Math and Mission was inaugurated at Belur Math on Saturday. The two-day meet is part of the year-long celebrations of the 125th anniversary of Vivekananda's Chicago speech.

In his address at the meet, Ramakrishna Math and Mission president Swami Sruratananda said, "Ramakrishna Mission entered the field of education in a small way at a time when India was not a free country. Even then, need for having an industrial base with an educational aspect, in order to serve people in the right way was felt. In 1902, a small Industrial School was started with a handful of students from poor families from villages. Much later, Vidyamandira College was founded. In this

sion focused on education, he said, "We have been marching along, educating the future generations. This convention is meant for the alumni associations. This is the first time in the history of Ramakrishna Mission that an alumni meet of all the institutions has been organized." Ramakrishna Math and Mission has around 54 educational institutions.

In a statement, Ramakrishna Math and Mission general secretary Swami Sivatananda said, "We expect the participation of nearly 3,000 people, including our monks, ex-students from India and abroad, along with their families, and some former students of our institutions in Bangladesh as observers."

Bibek Debroy, alumni and chairman of the economic advisory council to the prime minister, was the chief guest at the inaugural session. Five sessions, including lectures, discussions and conferences by alumni and monks, will be held over the weekend.
